1. SOLAS News

Doug Wallace of IFM-GEOMAR (Kiel, Germany) has been named as the new Chair of the SOLAS Scientific Steering Committee starting in 2008.

Doug had previously served as a Member of the SOLAS SSC from its inception in 2002 until the end of 2006.

We welcome new Members of the SOLAS SSC, approved by the SOLAS sponsors

(CACGP, WCRP, IGBP, and SCOR) for 2008:

Eric Saltzman, UC-Irvine, USA

Jacqueline Stefels, University of Groningen, Netherlands

Nilgun Kubilay, Middle East Technical University, Turkey

Roland von Glasow, University of East Anglia, UK

The SOLAS IPO Project Officer, Emily Breviere, has accepted a temporary secondment in the IGBP office in Stockholm. We will miss Emily in the office, and the SOLAS IPO will be advertising for a temporary replacement for Emily's post soon. This position in the SOLAS IPO will be available only as an entry-level post.

SOLAS is a sponsor of the 2-6 June 2008 Symposium on Eastern Boundary Upwelling Ecosystems to be held in Las Palmas, Gran Canaria, Spain.
<http://www.upwelling-symposium.org/>

The SOLAS SSC and IPO will participate in the 5-9 May 2008 IGBP Congress in Cape Town, South Africa. Coincident with this meeting, SOLAS will hold a workshop with South African scientists. More information will be forthcoming.

American Geophysical Union (AGU) Fall Meeting

10-14 December 2007

San Francisco, California

<http://www.agu.org/meetings/fm07/>

Abstract Submission Deadline: 6 September 2007

Sessions include:

U09: The Intergovernmental Panel on Climate Change 2007: Results and responses

U13: Cooler living in a warming world: Solutions to the carbon problem

U18: Carbon sequestration: Reservoirs, techniques, policy

A08: Atmospheric aerosol nucleation and new particle formation

A16: Tropospheric Halogen Chemistry

A29: Atmospheric Chemistry and Climate

GC22: Geoengineering as a solution to global warming?

OS13: The Cariaco Basin: Connecting Climate Change, Upwelling, and Anoxia

2008 Ocean Sciences Meeting: From the watershed to the global ocean

2-7 March 2008

Orlando, Florida

<http://www.aslo.org/orlando2008/>

Deadline for abstracts: 2 October 2007

Sessions include:

003: Ocean acidification: Causes and impacts on biogeochemical processes, biota and climate

008: Decadal variations in ocean interior circulation, water masses and biogeochemistry - Results from the CLIVAR/CO2 repeat hydrography program

014: Polar biogeochemistry

016: How does the subtropical N. Atlantic transfer heat, cycle nutrients and uptake carbon?

022: Trace metal biogeochemistry - Interactions between atmosphere and

ocean

023: Space-based measurements of ocean climate change

036: Scientific results from global and regional ocean syntheses

038: Progress in mechanistic modeling of the ocean carbon cycle

047: Ocean processes in the western tropical Pacific

049: Open ocean time-series data: A tool to observe temporal variability of biogeochemical processes

057: Ocean-atmosphere exchanges and meridional transports in global water and energy cycles

079: Photobiogeochemistry: Shedding light on biogeochemical cycles from rivers to the sea

084: Harmful algal blooms: Interactive influence of nutrient competition, differential grazing, and other causative factors

092: Nitrogen supply in the oligotrophic ocean

105: Diurnal variability in the surface ocean and in air-sea interaction

107: Ecology and oceanography of harmful algal blooms: Regional and comparative studies of the GEOHAB and ECOHAB programs

108: Controls on carbon biogeochemistry and fluxes and their associated scales of variability in ocean margins

109: Future observations of aquatic biology and chemistry from the next generation of remote sensors

112: Natural iron fertilization in the Southern Ocean, and implications for the biological carbon pump

116: Confronting marine biogeochemical models with data: Approaches to quantitative evaluation and calibration

121: Sunlight effects on dissolved organic matter bioavailability

137: Oceanic and meteorological measurements from voluntary observing ships and other platforms on opportunity

146: Changing chemistry of estuaries, coasts, and the ocean

158: Time-series observations of biogeochemical processes and their long term trends

162: Dynamics of colored dissolved organic matter (CDOM) in the global

ocean

166: Potential for atmospheric CO<sub>2</sub> sequestration in the ocean

182: Variability and trends in oceanic oxygen: From a tracer of biological production to a bellweather of climate change

183: Interannual trends in phytoplankton dynamics in coastal ecosystems

Marine plankton: from cells to ecosystems

3 April 2008

University of Plymouth, UK
<http://www.holligan-fest.org/>
Registration opens 1st October

PICES Climate Change meeting
18-23 May 2008
IEO, Gijon, Asturias, Spain
